"RUSSIAN CRUELIES."

What Gen. Cassius M. Clay Has to Say of Them.

In a late number of the Richmond (Ky.) Herald we find the following very readable and interesting letter from Gen. C. M. Clay, in defense of Russia and the Russians:

"A recent journal of Dec. 12, is a paper which is a type of the malignant calumnies of the anti-Russian press for a century or more. I lived in St. Petersburg for nearly nine years, and I have no sympathy with those who are so prompt for that purpose. I dined with the Emperor and imperial families, and took eau-de-savon soup and black bread with the woodmen who came from the interior on boats and carts. I have seen a Russian in America living or dead who can speak with more authority than I can on the real character of Russia. I believe there is no more charitable and humane nation on earth than Russia, and I have no sympathy with those who are so prompt. There are no deaths in absolute poverty in Russia as in the great cities of Paris, London, New York and other European cities. Besides the charitable assemulations organized by the first nobility in Russia, money and other articles, by organized societies collect funds by gifts, needle-work and other methods for clothes, soup houses and bread, which are distributed all over St. Petersburg; and such methods are used in every city in Russia.

The infants that are drowned and thrown into sewers in Europe and America are taken at a day old, if need be, and brought up with the public expense in St. Petersburg, Moscow and other cities. The workmen when driven to a suitable age are put to service and may make a generous living. Russia liberates her slaves not by war, and gave them land. A nobleman who was exiled with the nephews of Dolgoruky, Governor General of Moscow (vice-roy) and a liberated serf or slave was at the table as a guest and made the best dinner speech on the occasion. The following letter from Assistant Bishop Potter supplements Rev. Dr. Newton's explanation from the pulpit and is given by the latter to the public:

NEW YORK, Jan. 10, 1884.

Dear Dr. Newton:

In our brief interview the other day you gave me an assurance which was I am sure, most satisfactory to me that it was not based on mine. May I trouble you again to do so? You know, as well as I, that in the matter of your course of Sunday afternoon service you have no power to do so. You also know that my course of action is merely my own, and you also know how thoroughly persuaded I am that you are animated in all that you have said and done by your duty to your fellow-men. But I am not less persuaded that the influence of what you are now doing on Sunday afternoons is not such as you yourself would wish, and that its results are such as you would not have been led to, to an extent of which you have no knowledge. And so I ask you to stop, and remind you of your promise to do so. I do not approach you in any attitude of authority, as it is doubtless true, in view of all the circumstances of your own position and mine, that I have any right to do so. Be that as it may, I have the bare reason of my own personal conviction of the correctness of mine, and I will only add that if you need a reason to give your people for doing so, you are at perfect liberty to say that I have made it, and I am dear Dr. Newton. Your friend and brother,

H. C. POTTER.

THE CAPTAIN OF THE CELTIC.

He Comes Back Upon Some of His Grumbly Friends.

LAWRENCE, Jan. 16.—Captain Gisborne, of the steamship Celtic, said that when the Gellert hotel in sight and stood by, the prevalence of a severe gale accompanied by a heavy sea, he had no opportunity to call upon the other without great risk. He believes that his decision not to make the attempt was amply justified by the circumstances. "I was afraid of being captured, since their forces arrived," said Captain Gisborne, "and wanted acts of piracy." He had plenty of fresh provisions throughout the whole passage, and with the exception of his own cabin, which was a snug retreat, there was no cause whatever for complaint. The Celtic behaved admirably throughout, and for a steamship exhibited excellent qualities under sail."

A Brutal Assault.

ANDERSON, Ind., Jan. 16.—Albert Hercules is jail heir, on a charge of basely preferring by State Blower. In the early morning of the last few days, managed to find and secure a one-pound iron nut. This he tied in one corner of his handkerchief, making a formidable weapon. On Tuesday, he sent for the victim of his malice, who was no longer in the jail, having been sent to the hospital. The jailer's back was turned to him as his jailer's hands were to his head. As he raised his weapon and struck her repeatedly on the head with it. The poor girl sank down unconscious. Her head is badly cut, and as she is near confinement, it is feared the shock and hemorrhage will kill her. If she dies, Hercules will be lynched.

A Merry Christmas Eve.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 24.—Thomas Jarvis, rich and miserly, resides, lives alone three miles south of Waveland, in a poor and plainly furnished farm-house. No human being lives there, his nearest neighbor is quite a distance off. He has never seen since Christmas eve, his friends and neighbors were alarmed, and Jacob Mitchell, of Waveland, went to look after him. He found Jarvis lying in bed dead, prostrated by a fit of apoplexy, in the bed and another in his leg. Jarvis says that in Christmas eve two men woke him at the hour in bed and demanded his horrid wealth. He told them he had none, so they kept it. They shot him and raked his body, giving him $500. No clue has been found to who they were. Jarvis is in a critical condition.

Joined the Union.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 16.—The Morning Herald, which has for years been a Union paper, for forty cents a copy, 1,900 ems, has voluntarily entered the Baltimore Typographical Union. The Union granted cards of admission to all the old Herald printers and furnished them with all the necessary tools. The rate to be paid to the Herald, however, is cents per cent.

VOOTING FOR SENATORS.

Interesting Contests in Several of the States.

DIA MUNES, Ia., Jan. 16.—The Republican Legislative Caucus nominated for United States Senator W. B. Allison, with opposition. He was nominated by acclamation.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 16.—In the Democratic Senatorial Caucus at Frankfort fifteen ballots have been taken. The first two were negative, resulting in Williams, 24; Blackburn, 44; Sweeney, 23. The fifteenth resulted, Williams, 54; Blackburn, 44; Sweeney, 23. The proceedings have been characterized as slow and uncertain by the students, silence and determination that promises a deadlock. Look at the Sweeney followers tried to lead a stampede to Williams on the fourth ballot, but were beaten. Williams, 54; Blackburn, 44; Sweeney, 23. The joint ballot was as follows: Democrats—Judge John M. Robinson, 34; Hon. James B. Groome, 21; Hon. F. T. Thomas, 15; Hon. John T. Clegg, 12; Hon. J. C. Jackson, 10; Wastcoat, 22; Cresswell, 5; Dixon, 5. Necessary to a choice, 59. Immediately after taking a vote both Houses adjourned.

CHURCH ROW.

The Fun Over Dr. R. H. Newton's Divorce.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—The voluntary discontinuance on Sunday last of the "All Talks" of Rev. R. Heber Newton at All Souls Church, has been followed immediately by a series of events of some importance which was done in the presence of some adverse criticism.

The following letter from Assistant Bishop Potter supplements Rev. Dr. Newton's explanation from the pulpit and is given by the latter to the public:

The stakes were $50 a battle and $500 on main.

A Question of Precedence.

VIRGINIA, Jan. 16.—The Emperor Francis Joseph has recently decided to postpone his proposed visit to Rome. Means, my friend, perhaps for you,
A discontented buck.

Wait Till the Clouds Roll By.

An attack of this office recently heard a skilled vocalist sing: "Wait Till the Clouds Roll By." She rendered it:

"Wah lah the raw raw raw, Jawy,

"Wah lah the raw raw raw,

"Wah lah the raw raw raw."

And then she smiled sweet and broadly over the well-merited applause.

The Proposed Change in the Courts.

Ed. Bulletin. — With your permission, Mr. Editor, I will add a few words to your editorial that appeared in the Bulletin Saturday, headed "Bar Meeting." You say that the bar of Maysville "was entirely competent to look after the interests of the public." Grant that it is, but suppose that the public believe that certain members of the bar, for reasons best known to themselves, adopt a measure detrimental to the interests of the people, for whose extensive benefit courts of law are created, and that the public bound to submit? Your further allegation that "litigation is decreasing, and that the opinion of lawyers and litigants is that three terms are sufficient." My only answer to that is that cold-blooded men, who sit on our Circuit Court, have been compelled during the past year to hold night sessions in order to keep pace with the docket, and also that several important cases have been brought before this court at the last term of this court, not tried for lack of time.

It is thus with four terms, what will it be with three and perchance only two? Again you say that "the idea is to save expense, and the expense by abolishing the January term." The idea is a good one, but it will doubtless take a great deal of arithmetic to make it materialize for Mr. Editor. If yours are passed by the legislature, we hope, sixteen weeks, hold court, what difference will it make as regards expense, when these sixteen weeks of court are held in succession on stated intervals? And further, as another reason in favor of the January term, you say that "the atmosphere of the court house is foul and unwholesome." This von doubtless intend for a clincher, but then it would strike the causal observer that the fault lies with the judge, not with our purifying system. With these few hastily drawn observations by way of reply to your editorial, we would now beg of von space to say a little more. Since our Circuit Court, then having a criminal, chancery, and common law jurisdiction, was held but twice a year. But it soon became manifest to all that the time allotted for the trial of criminal cases was too speedy and proper disposal of cases, which is said to be the sole aim and exclusive purpose for which courts of law are created. This von did not diminish with time, but gradually increased, until the wheels of justice had become so clogged that relief was imperative. It was amidst this unsatisfactory state of affairs, that our late Criminal Court was born, and it continued an independent court at least, and was called into existence by the practice of lessening the onerous duties of the Circuit Court and thus it was one of the costliest luxuries that this country has ever afforded, yet it was short of obtaining the end for which it was projected. It gratified only partial and was as expensive as it was unpopular with the people.

The cost of holding both Circuit and Criminal Courts, and the expenses of the same, but still the docket remained crowded and cases fast accumulated. The Criminal Court having failed to subserve the end for which it was created, was disbanded, and an independent court at least, and was called into existence by the practice of lessening the onerous duties of the Circuit Court and thus it was one of the costliest luxuries that this country has ever afforded, yet it was short of obtaining the end for which it was projected. It gratified only partial and was as expensive as it was unpopular with the people.

George Andrews, overseer in the Lowell Carpet Corporation, was, for over twenty years before his removal to Lowell, afflicted with salt rheum in its worst form. His alterations actually covered more than half the surface of his body and limbs. He was entirely cured by the use of Aver's Sarsaparilla. See certificate in Ayer's Almanac for 1883.

If you are weakened down through excessive study, or by early indiscretions, Allen's brain food will permanently restore all lost vigor, and strengthens all the muscles of brain and body. $1.50 for $5.—At drugstores, or by mail from J. Who is the Prettiest Girl in America? It is a question that would perplex a congress of connoisseurs assembled to nominate the most beautiful. But such an assemblage would not be surprised to learn, that the most charming of their sex, on this side of the Atlantic, enhance the beauty and preserve the soundness of their teeth with Sodzont, since every body knows, that the ladies prefer it to any and all dentifrices. Let no man say after this, that women lack judgment.

The Sea of Oblivion would long since have swallowed up Sodzont in common with so many forgotten tooth pastes and dentifrices, did not the experience of a whole nation prove that it possesses signal advantages. It thoroughly cleans the teeth, dissolving and removing their impurities; it revives their failing whiteness and strengthens their relaxing hold upon their sockets; it renders colorless, ulcerated gums hard and healthy; and besides neutralizing an unsavory breath, invests it with own fragrance.

Thou art miss'd, thou art miss'd, gentle sister, most miss'd. With such moment, some kind loving thought comes of thee; At each remembrance something thy frail hands have made.

And our hearts now aches, as these objects seem. Can it be we shall never, on earth, see them more? Can it be the long, last farewell has come? —I say not so!

Yes, true—but we have thy sweet voice, Oh! how nobly and sad is thy poor brother's conduct, they think, was entirely uncalled for, and is at best no argument in favor of their cause, which the actual course of events has shown. The young attorneys will aspire to be more manly and courteous than several older members of the bar who have so mercilessly attacked them, and will not seek to discredit them in public, nor even in private personal interview. If any one can find the "several young attorneys" are alone in this fight, he is very much mistaken, for to the remonstrance, there are appended the names of nearly a hundred of the firm and associates. But this is because of the number or brandishing of those who signed the remonstrance that favor is expected from the Legislature, but the young attorney's cause is well supported upon the merits of the cause they have espoused, and upon the intrinsic merits of their cause, regardless of who may be for, or against, they are willing to stand or fall.

CARD.

Having connected myself with the bar and the law office of B. Clegg & Co., would be pleased to have the services of friends and the trade to call assuring them of fair dealing at all times. Respectfully, Jan. 15, 1884. (2d) E. W. DILLON.

Worms Candy because they know its contents are the best known remedies for worms and they rely on its effects. They prescribe it regularly for children who cannot take the usual nauseous compound that have been used as vermifuges.

It is wise to provide against emergencies that are liable to arise in every family. A cold may be a dangerous thing of itself, depending upon the means at hand to combat it. In sudden attacks of cold, grip, asthma, etc., Aver's Cherry Pudding will prove the quickest and most effective cure, and your best friend.

PRIESSES REDUCED.
